Dear students!

University of Candido Mendes, South Ural State University and AMBRA University invite you to join International students research project “Law, Digital Technologies and Alternative Dispute Resolution (L, DT & ADR): International and Comparative Perspective”.

Law and DT, including its connection with the ADR, represent one of the most interesting and relevant field of expertise. New generation of lawyers should know about trends, connected with digitalization and its influence on law. Research experience in this sphere gives you the opportunity not only to strengthen your research and academic writing competences. It provides you with the skills, that can give you more opportunities to build an international career and be in demand in today's market.

The main aim of “L,DT & ADR” Project is to create an international students’ virtual hub for the research and cross-cultural collaboration in the sphere of Law and Digital Technologies, including its connection with Alternative Dispute Resolution from the international and comparative perspective.

To provide students with the opportunity to compare jurisdictions and regulatory approaches of the different countries the P2P approach is chosen. Working in pairs (or small groups) on one of the given research areas under the supervision gives the opportunity to discuss the preliminary and final results of the project and get the necessary for the future career experience of the teamwork.

Topics of the “L,DT & ADR” Project include:

1. Arbitration and Mediation
2. Design of Dispute Systems
